fortify. clarify. take action.

I can provide you with the following services:

- Coaching for entrepreneurs, executives and consultants
- Change management at every stage of the change process and during the initial stages of the new organization
- Coaching and consultancy school communities, administrators and teaching staff
- Supervision for teams, groups and leaders
- Training and continuing personal and professional development for executives, coaches and consultants
- And: Research and hands-on projects in partnership with the Cologne University of Applied Sciences, including the opportunity to involve students fortify – clarify – take action: these three elements will guide us in our work together.

My approach

I can show you different ways of achieving your goals, as well as provide you with an external perspective, my perception and my expertise. It is up to you to provide the initiative to understand and resolve your situation, to reach decisions and to set the pace throughout the process. It is important to me that the process is always transparent, that you understand why we are taking certain steps and know which stage we are at.

fortify

Together we will look at your strengths and your potential in order to rediscover them and develop them further. I can provide you with the space to pause and reflect to enable you to get in touch with yourself and deal with the issues facing you.

clarify

This involves recognizing what's going on – your own feelings and attitudes, the external situation – and developing an image of your personal goals and the path to achieving them.

take action

I aim to guide you through the implementation stage of the process as you put what you have discovered into practice, move in new and unfamiliar directions and develop on a personal level.

fortify. clarify. take action.
